DCB Performance Boats Offers First True-Tunnel Catamaran

Southern California builder to debut new M37R in the spring

EL CAJON, CALIF. (August 23rd, 2019) — In an effort to expand and evolve its lineup of high-performance catamarans, DCB Performance Boats is introducing a new outboard engine-powered 37-foot cat designed with a 65-inch tunnel and no center pod.

Expected to debut at the 2020 Desert Storm Poker Run in Lake Havasu City, Ariz., in late April, the M37R model is the El Cajon, Calif., company's first catamaran built without a center pod design. At 37 feet, 6 inches long with a 10-foot, 6-inch beam, the true-tunnel-style boat has the team at DCB—as well as its customers—excited about the brand new offering.

“Obviously, we have built a loyal following of the most amazing customers in the world on our center-pod catamarans and we will continue to,” said Jeff Johnston, president of DCB. “But different buyers have different preferences, and some of our customers have been asking for this. Plus, we will have a true-tunnel, outboard-powered catamaran for clients who may have wanted a DCB cat without a center pod.”

The boat, which has a 36-foot, 2-inch running surface and a dry weight of 5,950 pounds, is going to be powered by twin Mercury Racing 450R engines and set up with its throttles and shifters in a console between the buckets seats for the driver and co-pilot—also new for DCB.

The base price for a well-equipped M37R on a tandem trailer is $470,000. The first few 37-footers are sold, according to Johnston, and the company currently is taking orders for future builds. The DCB team designed the cat in collaboration with Franco Gianni of SFG Yacht Design and tooling production—via CNC machine—currently is underway.
